SCENES like the above will be repeated at schools throughout the Valley today— and again tomorrow— as kindergarten through twelfth grade students troop back to school— by the familiar means of a bike, by school bus, car or on foot.

School bells beckon 38,000 students

Some 38,000 kindergarten through twelfth grade students in five Valley school districts start school today, with more than a few changes in store.

In addition to the "new faces" in some classrooms, the renovations and opening of new facilities, there'll also be some changes in the curriculum as either devised or mandated by local, state and federal authorities.

One major one will involve the school lunch program.

The San Ramon district, challenged by burgeoning school enrollments, will open a brand new intermediate school today (Pine Valley), a renovated one (Neil Armstrong), and several others (including California High School in San Ramon) that have new or expanded facilities.

Opening today are schools in Livermore, Amador, Pleasanton, Sunol Glen and San Ramon. Classes in the K-8 Murray School District begin tomorrow.

All districtss, save Sunol Glen, will observe Admission Day this Friday. Sunol Glen will take the holiday on Monday.

Parents and students wishing information on class times or school bus schedules should call the school the student has been registered at.

The Times ran a complete school bus schedule in Sunday's edition for the Amador, Pleasanton, Murray and south San Ramon district schools.

Close to 140 new teachers, most with experience in other districts but "new" to the Valley, will greet students this morning. The top number of newcomers was registered in San Ramon where 69 were employed to meet the rising tide of elementary and middle grade students.

The old major administrative change is in the Murray district where Dr. Jessie Kobayashi, formerly an assistant superintendent in the Whisman School District in Mountain View, is now superintendent. She succeeds interim superintendent Heinz Gewing and former top man Dr. Donald Williams.

Murray's cafeteria program will be run by the Amador district, which organizes food services for Pleasanton, also.

Pleasanton and Amador last week announced starting times for each of its schools.

The kindergarten times for Alisal and Fairlands will be 8:15 to 11:15 a.m. and 11:45 a.m. to 2:45 p.m. Pleasanton and Vintage Hills will have sessions lasting 9:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. and 12:15 to 3:15 p.m.

For Valley View, the kindergarten times are 9 to 12 and 12:15 to 3:15. Walnut Grove sessions are scheduled for 8:30 to 11:30 and 12:15 to 3:15 p.m.

Primary times (grades 1-3) at Alisal, Fairlands, and Valley View are 8:15 a.m. to 1:45 p.m. and 9:15 to 2:45. Fourth and fifth graders at Fairlands will attend from 8:15 to 2:45.

Vintage Hills will be in session from 9:15 to 2:45. Walnut Grove sessions are scheduled for 8:30 to 2 and 9:30 to 3 (primary), and 8:30 to 2 for fourth and fifth graders.

Fifth graders at Harvest Park School will attend either the 8:15 to 1:35 session or 9 to 1:55. Sixth through eighth graders are in school from 8:15 to 2:30.

Pleasanton sixth through eighth graders will be in session from 8:45 to 2:55.

Times announced by the high school district are as follows:

Amador Valley High, 8 a.m. to 2:20 p.m.; Dublin High, 8:05 a.m. to 2:20 p.m.; Foothill High, 8:05 a.m. to 2:05 p.m.; Valley High, 9:30 a.m. to 1:10 p.m. Amador has a 50 minute lunch period, Dublin 50 minutes, Foothill 45 minutes and Valley no time for lunch.

In addition to the individual schools, residents of the San Ramon district have been advised to call the transportation department (820-1921) if they have any questions about schedules

Speech at Fairgrounds

Brown attacks Coors policy

PLEASANTON — Addressing a hot crowd of AFL-CIO picnickers at the Alameda County Fairgrounds yesterday, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. slammed multi-national corporations and denounced Coors beer for not giving "economic justice" to organized labor.

"I'd rather drink Miller's beer," Brown told the audience gathered at the Court of Four Seasons drawing a round of applause from many workers wearing T-shirts tagged with the words "boycott Coors."

Brown further condemned multinational corporations, citing Dow Chemical as one company who could "keep their products out of California."

At the traditional picnic sponsored by the Alameda County on Political Action (COPE), was a host of area politicians traveling with Brown including Assemblyman Floyd Mori and county Spervisors John George, Charles Santana, and Valerie Raymond.

Bown called for an end to all imports from multi-national corporations who have their products made in "sweat houses" in such places as Korea and Hong Kong.

"We have no need for products from corporations who don't want to pay their people better wages," the governor said.

As Brown delivered his brief 20 minute speech one worker at the picnic strolled down the aisle selling "ice cold watermellon" to the tune of 40 cents per slice.

Gov. Brown was a half hour behind schedule for his Pleasanton appearance. He spoke earlier in the day in Los Angeles were he criticized organized labor for "sitting on its laurels" instead of trying to stop new exploitation of workers by American industry.

"It's time you pull together," Brown told a Labor Day meeting of the Catholic Labor Institute of Southern California. "Let's get a piece of the pie. Let's share it and spread it out. Let labor take the lead as it has in the past. You can't rest on your glory. Things are tougher. You're losing ground. It's time now to pull together."

Brown also said that if the state can be first in energy technology and tops in the space exploration field, then somehow people who want to work can get jobs. But, he said, labor is not doing enough.

"Just a few blocks from where we sit, there are hundreds of people who are out of work, some of them are senior citizens, some of them are young people — dropouts from high school — some of them are middle-aged people grown out of their work. Who represents them?"

Brown also said the average worker is being exploited and crying out for labor leadership.

"But we have to give labor the tools it needs to carry out an effective fight to create more jobs, and those tools are labor laws — laws that call speedy elections and give the NLRB (National Labor Relations Board) the clout to do something about employers who openly flout the law," he said. "Too many darn workers are exploited and when those workers have unions, we'll have more jobs."

He said laws on which multinational crporations depend — like favorable U.S. tax and tariff laws — should be expanded to protect the worker and that if fair labor standards can apply here, then they should also apply in foreign markets where workers compete for U.S. jobs.

At an earlier news conference, Brown said California should develop jobs in the fields of space exploration and the development of energy alternatives such as solar power.

"My emphasis on solar energy, on the space program, on alternative energy sources, and to conserve these, is the very most important thing because tens of thousands of jobs will be created," he said.

The news conference was sponsored by the Los Angeles County AFL-CIO at the Museum of Science and Industry.

370 deaths reported

Continuing warm weather kept highways crowded

The toll of those who lost their lives in Labor Day traffic accidents had soared past the 370 mark by late last night as vacationers flocked homeward through the wee hours this morning.

No major accidents had been reported through mid-day Monday in the Valley, despite crowded highways. A crowd estimated in excess of 5,000 attended the annual Labor Day picnic at the Fairgrounds in Pleasanton to hear Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr. speak.

The three-day Labor Day weekend is the last of the nation's summer holidays.

By late afternoon, 363 persons had been killed in traffic accidents around the country.

This was in contrast to the 470 to 570 deaths the National Safety Council said might be expected from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Monday.

Council statisticians said about 400 persons would be killed in traffic during a three-day non-holiday weekend at this time of the year.

Last year, there were 501 traffic fatalities over the Labor Day weekend. The worst record was in 1968 when 688 persons lost their lives.

The warm California weather drew additional thousands out onto the roadways during the weekend, with many headed for picnic areas, beaches or the mountains.

Warm weather was expected to continue through today.

Meanwhile, residents of the southwest and southeast states breathed a sigh of relief as Hurricane Bab sputtered out in Louisiana's interior Monday.

The hurricane left the Gulf Coast awash in rain but remarkably free of damage.

However, forecasters warned that tornadoes could occur as the storm spun itself out. Southern Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and northwestern Floria were put under tornado watch.

Babe had barely reached hurricane intensity— winds of 75 miles per hour— before sweeping inland around daybreak. It was quickly downgraded to a tropical storm as it spent its force while heading toward Baton Rouge, La.

The loosely - formed storm came ashore near Morgan City, La., about 75 miles southwest of New Orleans, but it had little impact.

City council eyes crossing guard issue

LIVERMORE — After repeated requests for an adult crossing guard at Las Positas Blvd. and Arlington Way, city council plans to take action on the matter tonight at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Court Chambers.

The agenda also calls for taking care of some unfinished business regarding a matter that had been approved in principle Aug. 22, allowing Escoto to be served by the California Water Service Company rather than the city. The approval was conditioned on the city not having to pay to acquire Cal Water's extended facility in the area. The conditions were found not acceptable to Cal Water.

City council will examine a report detailing the cost of the City hook-up versus the Cal Water hook-up.

The council also plans to take a position on an approved study which calls for the Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Association (LAVWMA) and Zone 7 to manage jointly the valley-wide Reclamation Study.

Don Torluemke, Lawrnece Livermore Laboratory Transportation Coordinator will ask the council to adopt a resolution endorsing a nonprofit corporation to provide van leases to employers and employees for ride sharing and van-pooling. The corporation will supply funds necessary to make the program work.

In other communications before the council is a notice from the Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District requesting a joint meeting for consideration and discussion of an off-road motorcycle park facility feasibility study. No Public hearings have been scheduled.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Jr., addressed the annual Labor Day picnic held at the Fairgrounds in Pleasanton Monday.

Spokesmen hold Hekaton

Some 400 bicyclists from throughout the Bay Area participated in the Hekaton Classic VI Sunday, organized by the Valley Spokesmen. Here, bicyclists register in multi-purpose room of Dublin School before heading out over any one of four courses set-up. There were two 100-mile courses, a 50-mile and a 25-mile course weaving over Valley roadways. The annual Hekaton is one of the biggest cycle tours held in the Western United States. (Times photo)

Another disease victim feared

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Officials worried by the most serious outbreak of Legionnaires disease since it was identified in Philadelphia last year are re-evaluating recent pneumonia diagnoses and may have found a fifth victim here within a month.

Dr. John Ackerman, Ohio's health director, said Monday a 65-year-old woman now in Riverside Hospital, where four other cases were reported, is being tested to see if she has Legionnaires disease.

So far, Legionnaires disease has been confirmed in the cases of a 56-year-old Columbus woman who died, two other women who are hospitalized, and a fourth woman who recovered and was sent home.

On Monday, as part of an effort to re-analyze recent pneumonia deaths at Riverside and other hospitals in the area, state and federal health officials were flying blood samples to the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

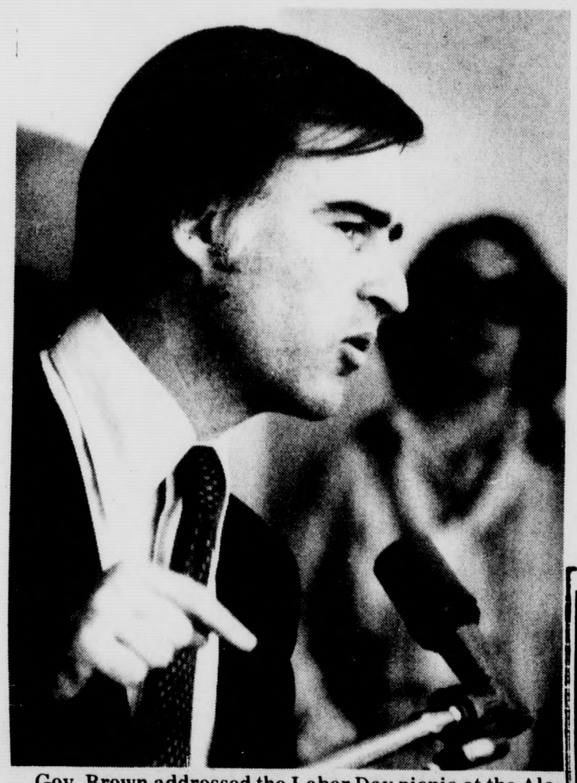
Testing for antibodies in the blood of Legionnaires disease victims takes about three days, officials say. The center, meanwhile, had sent two specialists to Ohio to lead the investigation.

Legionnaires disease is a respiratory infection caused by an unnamed bacterium that was isolated after 29 of about 180 persons stricken with the disease died during or after an American Legion convention in Philadelphia in July 1976.

The disease may go undetected because the symptoms are nearly identical to pneumonia. Officials say about 15 per cent of the cases are fatal, but even serious cases can be successfully treated with antibiotics if discovered in time.

Beaches under repairs

SACRAMENTO — Seacliff and New Brighton State Beaches, south of Santa Cruz, have been taken off the statewide computerized campsite reservation system for nights of Sept. 6, through Oct. 5, because of construction work, State Park Manager Harold Bradshaw announced.



Gov. Brown addressed the Labor Day picnic at the Alameda County Fairgrounds yesterday.

Pleasanton boy missing

PLEASANTON — A nine-year-old boy turned up missing over Labor Day weekend and the city police are seeking any information that could aid in their search.

Missing is Robert Lee Ponce who disappeared from the Mission Park area Saturday around 10 a.m. He had been staying with a cousin, Gloria Medina, while his parents were on vacation in Mexico.

The boy weighs about 80 pounds and stands four feet, eight inches tall. He has black hair and brown eyes.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the boy should contact authorities at 846-3202.

Final ballot

Voters throughout the Valley Community Services District have until today at 8 p.m. to file their ballots in the election that will fill two vacancies on the VCSD board of directors.

There are six candidates for the two posts. Just one incumbent, Lila Euler, is included in that field.

This election marks VCSD's first test with a mail ballot. Counting of ballots will begin after 8 p.m. Tuesday and the results will be published in Wednesday morning's Times.

Staffing report on board slate

PLEASANTON— Principals of Pleasanton Joint School District schools will report on staffing and the opening day of classes at tonight's board meeting.

Trustees convene at 7:30 p.m. in the district offices at 123 Main St.

Enrollments are expected to total nearly the same number as completed 1976-77.

The relatively light agenda also includes reports from the Amador Valley Teacher Association, California School Employees Association chapter, a 1977-78 budget report, a resolution concerning emergency repairs at Harvest Park School, current legislation, and second reading of a policy on solicitations.

BART police: No talks while in jail

OAKLAND (AP) — The jailed leader of striking Bay Area Rapid Transit police said Monday the dispute will not be solved as long as he is locked up in the Alameda County jail.

"I'm not going to negotiate from here," Eugene Jennings, president of Service Employes International Local 1008, said from his ninth floor cell.

"BART is responsible for me being here and I'm going to negotiate?" he asked. "No way."

Superior Court Judge William Hayes ordered Jennings and union vice president Jack Strand jailed on contempt charges Saturday for defying a temporary injunction he issued Aug. 23 barring the strike as illegal.

Jennings was sentenced to three consecutive five-day terms for picketing BART facilities and fined $2,000. However, the judge said Jennings would to remain in jail until he writes a letter ordering the policemen back to work.

Strand was sentenced to 20 days in jail and a $2,000 fine.

Union attorney Ron Yank said Jennings did not have the authority to end the strike. Only a general membership vote by the union could do that, he said.

Talks between BART and the union broke down over the union's demand that police be assured of the right to honor the picket lines of other BART unions.

Meanwhile, BART management personel who have operated the system since the walkout 10 days ago planned to resume service Tuesday morning.

BART does not run on weekends and plans for special Labor Day service were canceled when the security officers walked off their jobs.

San Ramon school board

Year-round schools bid

DANVILLE— Recommendations of the Citizens' Committee on Year Round Schools will be received by the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board at their regular meeting scheduled this evening.

Trustees will convene at 7 p.m. at the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

The Year Round Schools Committee was formed several months ago to investigate the possibility of launching a pilot program at year round classes at some San Ramon district schools.

Such a move as seen as a method of keeping up with the burgeoning enrollment in the district. Last March, a lease/ purchase bond measure that would have provided $17.7 million for schools sites, construction and additions was defeated.

The district has stated that double sessions within two years are a distinct possibility unless some plan to adequately house the continuing number of new students is devised.

Classes, which get underway this morning, are expected to be near or at capacity in most district schools. The district will open one new school, Pine Valley Intermediate, today with another scheduled for occupancy (Montivideo) by the first of October.

The board is also slated to receive bids for the purchase of 7.9 acres adjacent to the Education Center known as the Sycamore site.

Other matters scheduled for the agenda include consideration of appointment of an audit committee, K-8 school schedules, a resolution implementing the Right to Read Program, course of study and district curriculum guides for grades K-8, election of a vice president to succeed Ronald Harris, various change orders involving construction projects at California High and Pine Valley, dedication of Love Lane to the county for maintenance, bid awards for various classroom equipment, employment of certificated personnel and classified personnel.

Trustees will also act on a TEAM Program resolution, which would permit the district to act as the state's contractor during the period July 1, 1977, to June 30, 1978, and to provide consultant services for in-service training under the TEAM (Training for Expertise in Advanced Methodology). The state has allocated $1,000 to the San Ramon Valley Unified District for this program.

Language arts teachers meet

English and language arts teachers from four Valley school districts will meet for a luncheon and seminar at noon today at San Ramon Country Club.

The program has been organized and planned by an articulation committee composed of Dr. Neal F. Cavanaugh of Foothill High School, and including Mabel Atkinson, Judy Bamberger, Tony Bright, Sharon Carrick, Leslie Gardiner, Renee Goodrich, Mary Jones, Lorna Kruse, Maili Malvre, Frank Nolte, John O'Brien, Jack Ogden, Patricia Padgett, Leslie Powell, Linda Steiner, Audrey Vargas, and Tom Zach.

George Bury, Sunol Glen superintendent - principal, will make welcoming remarks and Dr. Jessie Kobayashi, superintendent of the Murray School District, will stress the need for articulation and continuity between grades and districts.

Dr. Bruce Newlin, superintendent of the Amador and Pleasanton school districts, will discuss the Hart Act.

A panel composed of Hal Lubin, Ellen Owens and David Wright from Chabot College Valley Campus will discuss college freshmen reading and writing skills center, and Neil Sweeney, an assistant superintendent of the Amador-Pleasanton districts, will talk on the English/Language Arts Articulation Committee.

Cavanaugh will conclude the program with a presentation of the English/ Language Arts booklet.

Word processing class set in SR

DANVILLE— The word processing class that will be taught through the Adult Education Program of the San Ramon Valley School District will be a night class, meeting Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m.

Registration for the class, which stresses word processing typing skills and working with IBM transcription equipment, will take place before the first class meeting Sept. 26.

Take off! / Panama? Tahiti anyone? Here's a look at fall trips

With Mt. Diablo closed presently you might be looking around for another vacation spot. How about Nepal?

Nepal offers the chance to see unusual people, travel hazardous roads and view occasional wildlife.

Actually it's very similar to Mt. Diablo — except the mountains are the highest in the world. You can even arrange a plane trip to see Mt. Everest. The locals are a mix of Hindus and Tibetan Buddhists. The trip will cost you a bit more than the $1.50 day-use fee at our neighborhood mountain though.

More than one travel group will take you trekking about the Himalayas. Mountain Travel is one, Questors Tours is another. The Questor trip costs $2499 (from New York), all inclusive, for the 23 day excursion departing Oct. 15.

If dangerous mountains are not your idea of a good time, how about a little political intrigue? I doubt Questors planned the intrigue in its scheduled trip to Costa Rica and the Panama Canal Zone, but by the Nov. 21 departure things could be interesting.

What's planned is interesting enough on its own. There will be an excursion to the Irazu Volcano for a view of both the Pacific and Atlantic Oceans, and three days in Panama City followed by trips into the deeply forested highlands. The 15 day outing costs about $1300 and leaves from Miami.

If Europe holds more interest for you, and you want something other than seven capitals in six days, you might consider a tour planned by Society Expeditions.

The Society for the Preservation of Archeological Monuments has a 19 day journey "into the ancient past." Project Earliest Man will include trips to Stonehenge, the Perigard cave art in France, sanctuaries and burial tombs throughout England, Wales, France and Spain.

The cost, not including airfare to London, is about $2200 for all land arrangements: stays in castles, chateaus and country inns, meals featuring regional specialties and transportation with an English speaking guide. Departure dates are Sept.23, Oct.7 and Oct. 21.

Have you ever seen a Boobie? Would you like to? If so, consider another of the society's trips — this one to the Galapagos Islands.

The 15 day excursion to the area which convinced Charles Darwin of evolution of the species leaves Oct. 29 and Dec. 17. The cost is $1495 for everything except airfare to Miami.

If you'd prefer to limit your adventure to National Geographic specials on TV and you want a vaction to rest and get tanned maybe Tahiti sounds more inviting than Boobie birds.

Ted Cook travel has a deal where you spend 10 days in Tahita on the islands of Papeete and Moorea for $729 per person, double occupancy.

Included is airfare from the Bay Area to Tahiti, five nights at Hotel Tahara'a, six nights at Moorea, and for another $89 per person 12 meals are included.

If you don't have th time or cash for a Tahitian stay, but still want an island holiday, Livermore World Travel can set you up in a one bedroom condominium with kitchen on the beach at Maui, Hawaii for $779 for two persons for a week.

The offer includes airfare from the Bay Area to Maui, use of a rental car with unlimited milage, a ride in a glass bottom boat and all taxes. He has booked travelers from as far away as New York for this Hawaii vacation.

If all this sun sounds lovely, but you've heeded doctors advice and decided to save your skin a trip to the Antarctic might just be the ticket.

An Antarctic excursion is also good for the person who is tired of sharing the great outdoors with a myriad of bugs. The largest animal on the continent is a wingless fly. The Lindblad Explorer offers a trip there in November and December that ranges in price from $3665 to $6774 and departs from Buenos Aires.

Local travel agencies can assist you in arranging most of these vacations.

RECREATED AT THE CIRCUS

The circus rings are before us like three shining jewels in the awesome setting of the coliseum's indoor stadium. In each of the rings a group of costumed acrobats is constructing itself into a five-man-high pyramid.

The acrobats labor together with precision and energy, the big men on the bottom, the progressively smaller men to be catapulted to the top. Great effort is exerted by all in unison, in getting the second man up to stand on the shoulders of the first, and the next man on top of him, and the next, and finally the suspense of trying to get the fifth man up. The fifth man looks alot smaller, and perhaps weaker. He can't quite make it. "Up with the underdog," I shout. Did I shout that? No, just thought it very loudly.

They have to break down the whole pyramid and start over until the fifth man is on top. I tensely watch the rebuilding of the pyramid as the men sweat and strain inside their skin-tight suits. I ask myself why all these men are into the building of self-pyramids, but then I remembered there is supposed to be mysterious power in pyramids. "They are doing it for all of us," I think.

Later, amid spectacle and splendor, enter the elephants. One carries the great lion tamer, who alights and strides into the middle ring, whip in hand. I don't like the way he cracks his whip at the tigers.

The innocents in their velvety gold and black striped coats move around the cage in unison, obeying, but not liking it. The whip cracks, they growl. One cat turns and slaps a tremendous paw at the tamer.

The other tigers, sitting in a circle on their stools, confer with one another. Will they rebel? Will they fight back against the whip? "Up with the underdog," I shout to myself.

But the whip cracks, and they all get in their places, cringing. They run around the ring on cue, do their tricks at the bidding of the spangled man, and then slink into their cages that stand ready.

But I feel transformed. The fight for freedom for all living things lives and grows inside me.

The clowns cavort into sight, all sizes, all types. Some are very bizarre. Strangely small heads, distorted arms, legs ten feet long, all riding in a brightly painted clown car. Twenty-six clowns get out of that car. How can that be? Clowns are very busy creatures, busy with necessary nonsense.

The clown with airplane wings tries to take off. He leaps up, but comes down faster. He tries again. "Up with the underdog," I cry.

The dog acts take the spotlight, and the ponies, and chimpanees. All obey their masters meekly. All perform like good little troupers. But I see a tear in a pony's eye. "Break free," shout I. "Quiet, mouth," I whisper. "You'll spoil the get-away."

The aerialists rise on high. Their stunts catapult them skyward to the ceiling of the coliseum. Heart-stopping maneuvers create havoc in my thoughts. "Go home," I send the mental message, "before you get hurt."

A friendly looking young man from South America climbs to the wire very near me. His feet slip. He frantically claws the air and finally recovers his balance. I see the gentle, vulnerable expression in his eyes.

He starts his tricks on the taut steel cable. Again his feet slip. His journey into eternity seems inevitable right before my eyes. "Get down, Kid. You have no business up there," I think. "Go home to your mother."

"Why does he do it?" The question still balances in the air, balances on the taut steel wire. Only his skill and his hopes keep him in the weak air while incessant gravity tries to hurl him to the ground.

I leave the coliseum amid the crowds of people. I leave the circus a different person than when I came in. I'm thinking now I am more like myself.

Sign language wins fair prize

Patty Walker, the 20-year-old Pleasanton women who "sings" for deaf audiences by translating music into sign language, has come back from the California State Fair with a couple of honors.

Patty, who performed in a gospel portion of a Fair show, was awarded a fifth place trophy for music. And better than that, she adds, is the fact that Fair judges who saw her perform have decided to give a special opportunity next year to deaf people and audiences.

"They started a catagory for sign language," she says. "The door has been opened, and that means others can do it too."

Patty, who translates both popular and gospel tunes into sign language for both deaf and hearing audiences, says that the Cal Expo judges based their decisions on "vocal and musical quality." But since her brand of performing is silent, Patty said they gave her "special recognition" with the trophy and by encouraging more people who can speak in sign language to perform. "That's why I'm excited to do it," she adds, "and each time I get more confident."

Patty says that area people who can utilize sign language are invited to contact her and participate in performances. She sings regularly at the Evangelical Free Church in Pleasanton, which meets Sundays at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. at Valley View School.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR, BROTHERS: We are disturbed and embarrassed because our 6 - year - old began stuttering about four months ago. Our doctor says he's a brilliant child and we hope he will go into medicine and be as successful as his two uncles. We don't want anything to mar his potential and we know that stuttering is a painful habit that can hold back children and adults. What can we do for him? — Z.O.

DEAR Z.O.: Stop pressuring him. Let him live his own life and try not to force him into any career choices. When it's time, let him be the one to decide.

Many parents make a serious mistake by trying to live their lives through their children. Your son shouldn't be burdened thinking that you want or expect him to be like his uncles. Try to treat him like the separate individual he is and avoid comparing him with others.

When a child stutters, it's an indication of an accumulation of stress and tension. The more anxious he is, the more he'll stutter. Stuttering is a conflict between expressing himself and holding back. The child is unsure of his ability to express himself; he has to speak upward to adults; he may be under pressure to achieve; there are too many demands and not enough support.

Your child will probably outgrow his stuttering if you can begin to relax the pressures.

Teach him to slow down and take a deep breath before he speaks. Let him take his time, too, about growing up and achieving and he'll find it easier to relax. Stuttering comes from a sense of having to run with words, to rush to catch up with others. Let him know there's no urgency. Let him know that you love him as he is and want him to develop his own potential. Accept the fact that he may not be interested in medicine. He may want to be a carpenter, an artist, a cook or a mechanic.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Several months ago my 18 - year - old daughter saw a man attack a woman who later died from her wounds. My daughter has been depressed and refuses to talk about what she saw. There were several witnesses and the police know the identity of the attacker, so it is not a question of her being needed as a witness. I think she won't talk about it because she's terrified. She won't do anything. She just sits in the house and stares into space. We can't get her to go out. I'm worried because she always had a very active social life. — W.M.

DEAR W.M.: I believe your daughter needs professional help. If she gets it now, it may save her and you from a great deal of trouble later on.

In cases of extreme fright sensitive, vulnerable people often react by denying the traumatic event. They repress and push it back in their minds. Some become mute, paralyzed or immobile. Experts simply don't know what kind of behavior to expect in someone caught off guard by a catastrophic event. Individuals are so complex, they're likely to do almost anything or they'll do one thing one time and another thing another time.

Animals also freeze in their tracks when frightened. It's a primitive survival mechanism that operates in many animals, a way of shortcircuiting a predator's response. They expect the predator will leave if they don't move.

At some unconscious level, people who react to fear in this way may be following some primitive instinct.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Several weeks ago my daughter, age 14, suffered a spontaneous pneumothorax. The doctor prescribed complete bed rest for several days and something for pain. Her pain was of short duration.

Her X rays show no signs of this now. What causes this condition? Is another attack likely? Will she feel the effects of this condition for a long period of time — shortness of breath, etc.? Is there anything that can be done to prevent this from happening again? The doctor described this attack as slight. Does this mean she can completely recover from the attack?

DEAR READER — Your daughter has probably already completely recovered.

A pneumothorax means air trapped between the lungs and chest wall. This usually happens when a small blister-like area on the lungs ruptures and air leaks out of the lung into the space between the lungs and the rib cage. This potential space is usually occupied with the air-filled expanded lungs. As air accumulates between the leaky lung and the chest wall the lung collapses, like a leaky inner tube. The more the lung is collapsed the less lung tissue is available for respiration. If the amount of air trapped is small the person may be unaware of its presence.

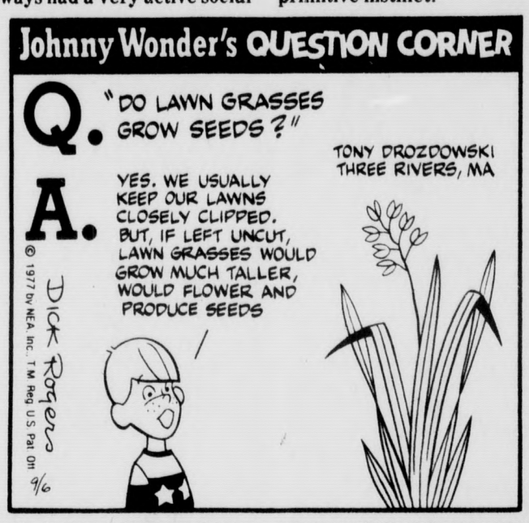
While the lung is collapsed the area where the bleb (blister) broke heals and becomes airtight. Then the lung gradually expands as the trapped air between the lung and ribs is absorbed. It is nature's natural "tire patching" mecha...sm.

To rest a lung, patients with tuberculosis used to have air injected into the same space where your daughter collected air with her pneumothorax. That should give you an idea that it is not so dangerous. Of course, if complications arise such as bleeding, then things can be different.

They can recur, particularly if there are more blebs on the lung that can burst and induce a leak. Unless there are a lot of them and the pneumothorax recurs frequently it is best in most cases to just treat the pneumothorax when it occurs or support the patient until nature accomplishes its healing process. In a small number of cases it is sometimes worthwhile to surgically remove a lung segment that contains a lot of blebs as might occur at the upper tip of the lungs.

X rays show the presence or absence of accumulated air between the lung and the chest wall. The normal X rays of your daughter simply prove that the ruptured bleb has healed and the air has been absorbed. There is no reason for any disability or shortness of breath once this has occurred.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER



Q. "DO LAWN GRASSES GROW SEEDS?"
TONY DROZDOWSKI THREE RIVERS, MA
A. YES. WE USUALLY KEEP OUR LAWNS CLOSELY CLIPPED. BUT, IF LEFT UNCUT, LAWN GRASSES WOULD GROW MUCH TALLER, WOULD FLOWER AND PRODUCE SEEDS
© 1977 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.
DICK ROGERS
9/6

Yes! Like most common plants, the grasses we use to carpet our lawns and parks produce seeds.

Lawn grass is usually kept closely clipped. But even the finest grasses would never form a lawn if left to themselves. They would grow much taller, and would flower and form seeds.

Plant these and you can grow a new grass plant like the original one!

As the grass plants grow, many spread by means of long runners, which are stems that push forward instead of growing upward. The runners cling close to the ground.

They send down roots and new grass stems grow upward wherever a joint of the runner touches the ground, making a very tight growth of grass.

Cutting your lawn does not hurt the grass. Grass grows from the base --not from the tip as do many other plants.

We can mow the ends of the grass blades constantly, and the plant will still keep growing.

In "Bridge is Beautiful" Paul Cromelin gives this hand to show how declarer should take advantage of every little extra chance. He is in three notrump. Never mind how he got there. The contract is a good one and will be ironclad as long as the diamond suit can be brought in with just one loser.

Paul points out that the average declarer plays second hand low at trick one without stopping to think. He wins the trick with his ace or queen of hearts and leads the king of diamonds. East takes his ace and leads back a heart. Now South leads his queen of diamonds and East shows out. The hand collapses and instead of making nine tricks South is likely to make only six.

South should go up with dummy's king of hearts at trick one. Then he leads the first diamond from dummy. East plays his ace, but catches a small diamond, not an honor. South gets five diamonds, two spades, two hearts, game and rubber.

Note that this gains only because East held a singleton ace of diamonds. Against any other combination it would not have hurt South to win that first trick in his own hand.

Scarlett and Skip Bullock

Former Granada student finds mountain mate

The former Scarlett Gede, a 1973 graduate of Granada High School, married a fellow wildnerness ranger over the weekend, and now has some company at her unusual job of measuring mountain trail distances in the Sierra National Forest.

She married Skip Bullock, co-director for the Green Meadow Outdoor School in a ceremony near the Fish Camp entrance to Yosemite National Park.

Scarlett, who gets many grins as she wheels her odometer down the trails, hopes to get a $5000 grant from Fresno State University via the Forest Service to study why the buckbrush or wild lilac is not reproducing in the central Sierra.

Her parents, Priscilla and Victor Gede of Escandido Circle said their daughter has been attending Fresno State since going to U. C. Davis for two years.

Speaking about her unusual jobl Scarlett said, "Despite what a lot of hikers think, most of the trail signs are pretty accurate."

"It's not easy," she said about pushing the "big wheel" around the mountains. " People are very inquistive when they see the track of the wheel in the trail, they think some idiot is back here riding a bike." Scarlett said this is the first time they have ever really surveyed the trails to find out what condition they were in.

Part of the interest in the mountains stems from her environmental biology major at FSU where she has also served as a teaching asssitant in botany.

Arsonists blamed for Concord fire

CONCORD — The blaze Sunday which destroyed six homes under construction here was the work of arsonists, fire officials believe.

Consolidated Fire District Inspector Roy Bell said the three-alarm fire in The Crossings development, near Ygnacio Valley and Cowell roads, may have been set by children.

"We don't have any suspects at this time, but we do have some leads," he told The Times Monday.

Bell, who lives in the development, said the fire began at 5 p.m. with "a muffled whoosh and a black ball of smoke.

"We're not exactly sure how the blaze was started — we've got some conflicting stories — but we do know it was arson."

Forty-five firefighters and 14 engines battled the blaze for more than one hour. One fireman suffered minor injuries when he fell from a ladder. No other injuries were reported.

Bell said the six homes — on North Weeping Spruce Court and North Marsh Elder Court — had frames up and were ready to be structured. A seventh unfinished home was partially burned.

Damage was estimated at $350,000. The homes would have sold at $80,000 to $90,000 each if completed.

ERDA meet open to public

OAKLAND — The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) will host a public meeting Thursday, Sept. 8, at the Hyatt Hotel on Union Square San Francisco.

To be discussed is the Federal government's plan to develop energy - efficient appliances, lighting systems, space heating and cooling equipment and other consumer products.

The meeting is the second in a series sponsored by ERDA to acquaint potentials contractors and the generaL public with their national program to develop energy saving appliances and other buildings - related consumer products and technologies.

Dr. Masine Savitz, ERDA's director of the Buildings and Community Systems, and Dr. Kurt Riegal, Chief of the Consumer Product and Technology Branch, will be available to brief the median concerning the consumer products and technology program.

In addition to development of more energy-efficient porducts and technology, the program seeks to identify and overcome market barriers that may impede their commercial production and widespread consumer acceptance.

Senate holds key to Carter's 'top priority' energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Congress goes into the final phase of its 1977 session this week, it will be up to the Senate to decide whether President Carter's first year will see his top priority proposal enacted — a comprehensive energy bill.

The Senate Democratic leadership is prepared to sidetrack most other legislation to work out the inevitable disputes aroused by the complex legislation.

Before the two chambers left for a month-long summer recess that ends Wednesday, the House passed its version. It achieved a major compromise on the hardest - fought issue, pricing of natural gas. Proponents of an immediate end to government price control lost when the House approve a gradual increase in price. The fight will be renewed in the Senate.

Democratic leaders of both House and Senate are pledged to seeing the energy bill through. But House Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana would not predict flatly that the bill will be passed and the differences between Senate and House versions reconciled in the remaining six to eight weeks of this year's session.

"Powerful senators with strong views are at loggerheads," Brademas said in an interview. "It all depends on the extent to which senators can work out an agreement among themselves."

Some pending legislation cannot be set aside. A $60.2-billion appropriation for the educational, health and social programs of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has been held up by Senate - House disagreement on federal funding of abortions for women on Medicaid. The House version would permit funding only in cases where the woman's life was threatened. The Senate provision is broader. Conferees must try again.

Another appropriation difference is expected to be settled more easily.

The House included in a $110- billion measure for defense funding $1.4 billion for a start on B1 bomber production. Carter later recommended this be dropped and the Senate went along. The House is expected to agree.

The House, with the main energy debate behind it, is likely to pass more major legislation, even if Senate action will have to await 1978.

Among the bills with fair to good chances of House passage are an increase in the minimum wage from $2.30 to $2.65 an hour and a measure to curb Medicare and Medicaid abuses.

The private financial affairs of Bert Lance before he became budget director will be before two committees this week.

Transit panel to mull policy aiding elderly

BERKELEY — Alameda County Supervisor Joseph Bort will chair the Metropolitan Transportation Commission meeting Friday Sept. 9, at the Hotel Claremont.

To be voted on for approval is a Special Needs resolution which calls for a new policy making transportation serivces more accessible to to the elderly and handicapped in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Commissioners Joseph Houghteling, John Beckett, Lawrence Dahms and Quentin Kopp will participate in a discussion concerning the Air Quality Maintenance Plan along with members William Lawson, James Moriarty, and staff liaison Paul Bay.

Also on the agenda is a decision by the board whether or not to approve the Fare Level Guidelines, Resolution No. 459.

Regarding Finance, the commission will take action on extending contracts of Project Manager and Citizen Participation Consultant for Santa Clara Valley Corridor Evaluation.

Peripheral Canal battle 'not over'

SACRAMENTO— A political battle over the Peripheral Canal bill is not over yet, despite a continuing Assembly committee deadlock, Assemblyman Dan Boatwright warned.

The Concord Democrat predicted Friday that the full Assembly would agree to reconsider SB 346 a second time, probably Wednesday. To do so requires a vote by 54 members of the Assembly, he added.

SB 346, authored by Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-Chino, failed for the second time Friday to clear the Assembly's Water, Parks and Wildlife Committee. The vote was 3-3, with one abstention.

Boatwright said the political arm twisting and deal-making would continue to get the bill out of committee.

"Like I said last time, you ain't seen nothing yet," Boatwright said.

The bill can get another hearing in the committee if the Assembly musters the necessary votes, which Boatwright predicted are there "if Leo (McCarthy) pushes."

"It's not over yet," he said.

Commitee chairman Eugene Gualco, D-Sacramento, who supported the bill, said he would work to get another hearing, too. Supporting the bill Friday were the same two Democrats who voted with Gualco Wednesday— Howard Berman of Beverly Hills and Lawrence Kapiloff of San Diego.

Ag labor relations law

Mori responds to charges

Assemblyman Floyd Mori, chairman of the Joint Committee to Oversee the Agricultural Labor Relations Board, responded last week to comments made by some members of the Oversight Committee that he had spoken out prematurely regarding the committee's investigations into charges of bias and unfair administration of the state's agricultural labor relations law.

Mori who has conducted committee hearings around the state on the subject, noted that both growers and unions had made frequent allegations of bias on the part of the ALRB, but that for the most part, very little evidence had been offered to support these allegations. He also noted that the ALRB has administrative mechanisms for handling charges of bias filed against its employees, and that the Oversight Committee had requested information from the agency on the number of bias charges filed, how they were investigated, and the disposition of bias charges.

"The Oversight Committee will continue to investigate those charges of bias for which there is some substantiating evidence provided," Mori explained.

He also noted that, "the committee will monitor the ALRB's own procedures for handling formal charges of bias which are filed with the agency."

Mori added that comments by members of the Oversight Committee which reflect a predisposition to conclude that the law is being administered in a biased fashion are in themselves premature and unfounded at this point. "The entire purpose of the committee's present inquiries is to develop whatever facts are available in order that the members of this committee can reach an objective conclusion as to the fairness of the administration of this new law," Mori explained.

Mori reiterated his view that the most pressing need within the ALRB is for "better administrative management and more adequate training of the agency's personnel." Mori explained that, "Ambiguity on the part of board agents and lack of clear guidelines only contributes to the impressions of bias within the agency."

He also stated that the question of whether labor organizers should or should not have access to farm workers while on the employer's property has not been a central theme of the testimony presented to the Oversight Committee. "Instead," he added, "the testimony has focused on the amount of access to be given, abuses of the access rules, and the use of access as an administrative remedy." All of these questions will be the subject of continuing studies by the Oversight Committee.

The Oversight Committee will be holding a hearing in Sacramento on October 4 at which the staff of the ALRB will be asked to respond to the issues raised by the committee.

SF chief blames gangs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The police chief on Monday blamed a "subculture of fear" created by Chinatown gang warfare for a lack of clues in what officials call the city's worst mass murder ever — a restaurant massacre that left 5 dead and 11 injured.

Chief Charles Gain bitterly assailed the Chinese-American community for "an absolute abdication of responsibility" after no one came forward with information about the three killers who — without saying a word — sprayed the Golden Dragon restaurant with gunfire early Sunday.

Police patrols, meanwhile, were stepped up in the area. The Golden Dragon was open for business as usual and the sidewalks were crowded with tourists.

Detectives said they had no leads in the case and complained of getting no help from the Chinese community.

Chinese leaders, already stunned by the shootings, reacted swiftly to Gain's criticisms.

Superior Court Judge Harry Low said the alleged reticence of Chinese-American citzens to talk is "more a problem of the lack of Chinese personnel to cover the area.

"We have less than 20 Chinese speakers in the whole police department," Low said. "I'm sorry the chief has said the community has abdicated responsibility. It's a dual responsibility."

Stockbroker Fred Huie said, "What can people say (to police) about it? Nobody knows anything about it. They're just like people anywhere — they don't want to get involved."

Police Lt. Victor Macia said no motive had been determined for the killings.

The attack, by witnesses' accounts, took less than a minute. The assailants did not utter a word. All were described as being Oriental, but they all wore masks.

Police theorize that much of the gang activity in Chinatown in the 1970s has stemmed from clashes between foreign-born youths and American-born ones. At least 39 killings since 1969 have been linked to gangs, but there have been few convictions.

Panama Canal treaties conclave in Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latin American leaders began arriving Monday for the signing of the Panama Canal treaties as the Carter administration prepared for three days of ceremonies, receptions, public oratory and private diplomatic give - and - take.

President Carter returned from his weekend vacation retreat at Camp David, Md., ready for a meeting Tuesday with the other protagonist in this week's activities, Panamanian head of government Gen. Omar Torrijos.

Torrijos led a Panamanian delegation of more than 100 for the Wednesday evening ceremony at which the Panama Canal treaties will be signed at the headquarters of the Organization of American States.

Nineteen other heads of government from Latin America also were expected, and Carter planned to meet with all of them between Tuesday and Thursday. All told, delegations from 27 countries were expected.

Hundreds of government officials have spent thousands of hours gearing up for the onslaught of presidents, prime ministers, foreign ministers and other members of the official parties.

The airport arrivals and departures, the private meetings with Carter, simultaneous dinners Wednesday at the White House and the State Department and other activities would represent a major protocolary test for any administration, particularly one in office for less than eight months.

First Lady Rosalynn Carter personally was welcoming leaders of the seven countries she visited in May and June.

Lady Bird Johnson, whose husband opened the canal negotiations with Panama 13 years ago, has been invited to the signing ceremony and will stay in the Queen's bedroom of the White House.

The Lincoln bedroom of the White House has been reserved for former President Gerald R. Ford, whose canal policy was continued by the Carter administration last January.

Former President Richard M. Nixon, who appointed Ellsworth Bunker as chief canal negotiator four years ago, was not invited to the ceremony.

The signing ceremony will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. with television networks invited to cover the prime time event live.

Recent polls have shown that more Americans oppose the treaties than favor them, but support is accelerating, and Carter hopes the signing ceremony will provide additional momentum.

In the Senate, where a two - thirds majority is required for ratification, the balance of power is held by senators officially listed as undecided on the treaties.

Panama would assume control of the canal Dec. 31, 1999.

New jobs in energy search

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's best chance of creating new jobs lies in the fields of space exploration and the development of energy alternatives such as solar power, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said.

The Democratic governor, who formerly preached the philosophy of an "era of limits," told a Labor Day news conference that "the creation of wealth and new jobs, in my judgment, is the no. 1 priority."

The news conference was part of a meeting sponsored by the Los Angeles County AFLCIO at the Museum of Science and Industry.

"My emphasis on solar energy, on the space program, on alternative energy sources, and to conserve these is the very most important thing because tens of thousands of jobs will be created," he said.

Brown has recently been pushing solar energy as the way to create new jobs for Californians. In the wake of President Carter's decision not to fund the B1 bomber, Brown has also strongly pushed a revitalized space program.

"I have seen a lot of people, both young and old, who want to work but who just don't have the opportunity," Brown said.

Chisox take 'cap

A's hang on for win

OAKLAND — Once upon a time, Oakland A's pitchers would baffle opposing hitters and put a lengthy string of low numerals on the scoreboard — while their own hitters seemed incapable of all but the most feeble swings.

Now the A's are hitting. The pitching? Don't ask.

The A's took an 8-2 lead in the first game of yesterday's doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox and had to hang on for an 8-7 win after the Sox put the tying run on first in the ninth inning.

The second game was more like once upon a time as Pablo Torealbo pitched five no-hit innings and allowed Chicago only five hits for the entire distance, and Oakland lost, 2-1.

"That's the way baseball goes," said Doug Bair, the A's most effective pitcher in the opener. "The pitcher's bear down more when the batters aren't hitting."

Apparently, the converse is true as the A's banged out 10 hits in included a seven-run rally, their biggest of the year, in what turned out to be a squeaker.

And Mitchell Page continued his "Rookie of the Year" campaign with two singles, two walks and a trio of stolen bases.

The three steals equalled the high for an Oakland player in one game this season and gave Page 35 in 37 tries. Page, though hampered by a recurring ankle injury, has the green light to steal at will and obvioulsy hasn't dissapointed.

"In my mind, their's no doubt that Page is the "Rookie of the Year'," A's manager Bobby Winkles said between games, naming Detroit's Dave Rozema, Toronto's Bob Bailor and Mike Flannigan of Baltimore as major challengers.

Rozema, on target for a 20-win season, might appear to have an edge over Page, batting .306, but, says Winkles, "An every day player has to be favored over an every four-day player."

Page, who stole his fourth base of the day in the first inning of the second game, is, according to Winkles, "Very intelligent as to when he's got the jump. I usually ask the hitter to take a strike for him."

Turning his attention back to the game, Winkles sighed, "Damn, we score eight runs and almost don't win the thing. That's why 8-2 wasn't a big enough lead to stop running — those White Sox can hit. It's a big, big fallacy in baseball that you stop running when you're ahead."

The A's kept running but after their mammoth second inning, failed to score, making the game a contest every out of the way.

Chicago immedialty took a two-run lead as Ralph Garr led off the game with a double and, two outs later, Richie Zisk singled and Oscar Gamble doubled between the fielders in right and center to give the White Sox a 2-0 lead.

The A's, on singles by Rodney Scott and Page, picked up a run in the bottom of the inning before going beserk in the second.

If nothing else, the nightcap proved there are still baseball fans in the East Bay. When Winkles and North were thrown out of the game in separate incidents. the crowd of 12,065 began a symphony of boos that carried across the final four innings.

Oakland took the lead in the first innings when Scott singled, scored on a sacrifice fly by Tyrone.

The A's had one last chance to keep the game going when Earl Williams doubled to lead off the bottom of the ninth. Pinch-runner Matt Keogh went to third on a ground-out by Wayne Gross but was thrown out at the plate trying to score on Willie Crawford's fly to shallow center.

Lanny Wadkins shouts after birdie on 12th hole.

Austin, King take over U.S. Open tennis play

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Tracy Austin and Billie Jean King bridged the generation gap with victories Monday and advanced into the quarter-finals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Tiny Tracy, the nerveless retriever from Rolling Hills, Calif., absorbed Virginia Ruzici's hardest shots and beat the power-hitting Romanian 6-3, 7-5, becoming, at the tender age of 14, the youngest player ever to reach the quarter-final round at fabled Forest Hills.

Ms. King, 33, a four-time winner here, including 1967 when Tracy was 4 years old, survived a three-set thriller with ninth-seeded Kerry Reid of Australia. Ms. King, the No. 7 seed, won 6-1, 3-6, 7-6, taking the third-set tiebreaker 7-5.

Miss Austin is due to meet Betty Stove of the Netherlands in the quarter-finals, a female David and Goliath match if there ever was one. The 6-foot, 160-pound Miss Stove has nearly one foot, 70 pounds and 18 years on the pig-tailed Miss Austin.

Ms. King will meet the winner of Monday night's match between top-seeded Chris Evert and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex. Miss Evert lost her first five matches against Miss Richey, but has won the next five.

Meanwhile, the men were given some time on Forest Hills' historic center court, but after Miss Austin, of course. In a surprisingly easy match, stumpy Harold Solomon, the No. 12 seed from Silver Spring, Md., eliminated Vitas Gerulaitis of Howard Beach, N.Y., the No. 8 seed, 7-6, 6-3.

Solomon, a clay court specialist, becomes the first man to reach the men's quarter-final round.

A match between fourth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina and Jose Higueras of Spain was scheduled to follow the centercourt duel between Solomon and Gerulaitis. But Open officials said the late hour prevented the match from going on.

An angry crowd refused to leave the stadium, however, and after 40 minutes, with most of the sellout crowd of 12,298 still in attendance, tournament officials said the Vilas and Higueras match would go on as scheduled.

Then it began raining heavily.

Williams' back just bruised

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — Things could have been worse for the San Francisco 49ers, 33-0 losers to the Oakland Raiders in the annual preseason game between the neighboring National Football League teams.

Delvin Williams, the 49ers' star running back, left the game early with an injury. But it was just a bruised back and Williams should be at full strength for the regular season.

Joe Thomas, the team's general manager, said after the mismatch in Oakland that he and the coaching staff were going to sit down with the game films "to see if we can pinpoint what went wrong."

As for the possibility of personnel changes before the season begins, Thomas said, "If I make a deal it will be to help the club. You don't make a trade just to make a trade."

Wadkins wins, breaks record

AKRON, Ohio — Lanny Wadkins, undisturbed by rolling thunder in the distance and the homemade lightning unleashed by Tom Weiskopf, leaped and cavorted to a five-under-par 65 that brought him a five-stroke victory Monday in the prestigeladen World Series of Golf.

Wadkins, 27, who spent a couple of potentially productive years in a post-operative slump that ended with his dramatic victory in the recent PGA National Championship, broke by one stroke the course record at the long, wearying South Course of the Firestone Country Club with a 72-hole total of 267, 13-under-par on the layout many of the touring pros call the toughest on the tour.

The fired-up Wadkins aggressively ripped his shots dead at the flags. He galloped out of bunkers, sometimes falling on his knees, charging pell-mell up the rolling hills, hopping happily in the air on each birdie, and played his best when he needed it most.

That started on the ninth tee.

Weiskopf, who had opened the day's play five strokes back, vaulted into a tie. He birdied the first four holes, five of the first six and, with a 12- foot putt on the eighth, had gone six under for the day and tied Wadkins for the lead.

The gritty little gambler from Advance, N.C., faltered not at all. With $100,000 at stake and facing one of golf's most talented performers on one of his best days, Wadkins shook the moisture from his long, blond hair and went to work.

He birdied the ninth from 12 feet. He birdied the 10th. He hopped into the air when a 12- foot birdie putt ducked into the hole on the 12th. And when Weiskopf bogeyed that hole after missing the green, Wadkins had made up four strokes in four holes.

Wadkins led by four with six holes to play and, from the slump of Weiskopf's shoulders and a grim, glum expression on his face, it was all over.

Weiskopf, who played the front nine in 29, had an ordinary, uninspired 36 over the back nine and drifted back into a tie for second place with Hale Irwin at 272. Irwin, who had to win last week to get into this elite event, closed with a 69. It was the second time in as many years he was runner-up in this expanded, enriched tournament. Weiskopf and Irwin each won $35,000 from the total purse of $300,000.

Mark Hayes, 69—276 was fourth, followed by defending titleholder Jack Nicklaus, Ray Floyd and South African Gary Player, tied at 278. Nicklaus had a final-round 68, Floyd and Player shot 69s.

Tom Watson, the tired and overplayed winner of the British Open, Masters and three other American titles, shot 69— 282 and U.S. Open champion Hubert Green had 72—292.

Watson collected $7,000 and pushed his leading money winning total to $305,428 for the year. With Nicklaus and the absent Johnny Miller, Watson became only the third man to surpass $300,000 in winnings in a single season.

Wadkins received $100,000— more than he totaled in the combined seasons of 1975-76 when he was struggling back from gall bladder surgery—for his fifth career title, increased his season's winnings to $238,920 and strengthened his position as one of the game's brightest, most dramatic young stars.

Injured Vince clears it

Brawl erupts during Southard 100

A sprained hand didn't keep Vince Giamformaggio from gathering a bundle of honors at Sunday's Second annual Duke Southards School stock car racing at Altamont Speedway.

Vince captured the main event and also won the six-lap trophy dash to garner more than $1,400 in prize money.

Giamformaggio's brillant performance was almost overshadowed by some hot tempers during a break in the main event.

After 75 laps of the 100-lap main affair were completed the yellow flag was called due to several spun-outs. During the intermission several crew members from two cars became involved in some fisticuffs.

However, security police quickly broke up the fights and order was restored.

Giamformaggio took the lead in the main event after one lap but lost it during the third. However, his consistent drving brought him to the lead again at 24 laps and he kept it for good, winning by about 40 yards. Ron Esau overtooke Billy of Lakewood overtook Billy Claxon of Orangevale (Sacramento County) in the last two laps, to nap second place.

What made Vince's performance some outstanding was the fact he had injured his hand Saturday night in a race at Bakersfield.

"I finished fifth there," the 15-year veteran said in the winners' after the race. "This is the first time I ever raced here (at Altamont). It's a pretty rough course. There's a lot of chunks in the road."

The Los Angeles driver won the trophy dash in 20.230. There were no times given for the main event because of several yellow flags.

Unfortunately for the approximately 4,000 racing fans at the meet, veteran Don Harper, brother of television star Valerie Harper of RHODA, failed to appear at the Altamont race. His car developed engine problems in Bakersfield Saturday and he could not continue.

Ill fortune also struck Harper last year in the Southard race when his car developed electrical trouble when he was leaving and he had to drop out.

Don Robinson won a tight B main event race, beating out Jack Bowerman of Oakdale. Robinson took the lead in the 35-lap race after two go-arounds and led from there to the finish.

Jerry Hall was third, Bill Winter finished fourth and Jerry Masta took fifth.

Bad fortune also struck the only woman driver in the competition, Edith Lemos of Sacramento. Competing in the B main event for a chance to finish among the top five and qualify for the main event, she developed car trouble twice and finally had to drop out.

Apparently the Bakersfield race and other took their toll on the Altamont affair as several other top drivers besides Harper failed to appear Sunday.

Despite this, over 80 drivers showed up for the heats and time trials. But of the 30 which made the finals, only 12 were able to complete the race, which was held under 95 degree weather.

Vince Giamformaggio winds way to trophy dash win at Altamont Speedway Sunday. He later won the main event.

Giants blanked

ATLANTA — Atlanta's Dick Ruthven, staked to a three-run lead in the opening inning, hurled a three-hitter for his first shutout since his first start of the season as the Braves defeated the San Francisco Giants 4-0 Monday night.

Ruthven, 6-10, faced the minimum number of batters over the first 41-3 innings. Jim Barr, 12-13, was the loser.

The tournament concluded its Labor Day run with championship games yesterday..

Raiders face roster shave

OAKLAND — The final settlement on the Oakland Raiders' cut to a 52-man roster took several days, with quarterback Jeb Blount leaving over the weekend, and a cut to 48 players is required Tuesday.

Eventually, perhaps this week, the Raiders must cut either rookie Rolf Benirschke or 36-year-old Errol Mann, the men competing for the placekicking job, and Coach John Madden says, "It will be a tough decision."

Each kicked a pair of field goals in the 33-0 Saturday night victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The Raiders' 48-man roster may not be revealed until Friday night when they suit up in Los Angeles to play the Rams in the final game of their National Football League exhibition schedule. The team never makes announcements on cuts and often will keep players around after they've been put on waivers.

The Raiders had 53 players listed on their roster Saturday night, apparently because some who had been waived went unclaimed and management hadn't settled on which 52 to keep. Blount was the one to go.

TV for Sarah official

ALAMO — For the first time in the history of Ladies Pro Golf in Northern California, the TV cameras will be zooming in on the action of "The Sarah Conventry," the $100,000 LPGA tournament being held the third week of September at Round Hill Country Club in Alamo.

David L. Gibson, president of Sarah Coventry Jewelery, confirmed today that an agreement has been reached with the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) for the televising of The Sarah Coventry. The Times had reported the plans in an exclusive last month.

Although it is too early to know exactly how many of the 270 PBS affiliates will carry the event, initla support by local stations has prompted PBS to produce four, instead of the customary three hours of live action from Round Hill. The broadcast is scheduled for Saturday, the 24th from 1-4 p.m. PDT 2-4 p.m. and Sunday the 25th from Among those local stations which will carry it are KQED, San Francsico (ch. 9, 3); KTEH, San Jose (ch. 54); and KVIE, Sacramento (ch. 6).

Station KERA, the PBS affiliate in Dallas, will be the producer of the broadcast. As the tenth lasrgest PBS affiliate, KERA is known for its production of sporting events.

Renata Cole, executive producer for KERA and one of the few w pen sports producers in the country, stated the broadcast of The Sarah Coventry marks only the seocnd time that PBS has carried professional golf of any kind.

"PBS has literally dominated the televising of professional tennis, and we hope to establish the same preeminence in the sport of golf as well," Ms. Cole said.

The year-end timing and sizeable purse of the tournament, which will be held from Spet. 21-25, is expected to draw the biggest names in women's golf, who will be vying for the coveted number one spot on the 1977 money list. Already committed to play are Laura Baugh, Jan Stephenson, Sally Little, Judy Rankin and many more.

Carlton wins 20

PITTSBURGH — Steve Carlton became major league baseball's first 20-game winner of the 1977 season Monday, scattering seven hits in eight innings and rapping a home run, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to an 11-1 romp over the Pittsburgh Pirates and a doubleheader split.

Pittsburgh, which won the first game 3-1 behind the sevenhit pitching of John Candelaria and Rich Gossage, remained seven games behind the first-place Phils in the National League East.

Carlton, 20-8 over-all and 3-0 against Pittsburgh, got all the runs he needed in the second inning on Jay Johnstone's two run homer off loser Bruce Kison, 7-8.

Carlton opened the third inning with his third homer of the season, a solo drive over the right field wall.

Carlton singled home another Philadelphia run in the fourth and the Phils broke it open with five runs in the sixth.

Chiropractic Health Hints

BY DR. RAYMOND SERAFIN, D.C.
A NATURAL HEALTH FAMILY PRACTICE

IF YOU DO NOT ENJOY GOOD HEALTH

CONSULT YOUR CHIROPRACTOR FIRST

CORRECT POSTURE-HOW IT PROMOTES HEALTH

Last week we stated that good posture and health go together on one hand and poor posture and disease on the other, Today let us look for a moment at the way poor posture brings on poor health.

Bad posture means that the framework of the body is distorted and this means that important organs cannot do their normal work. Stooped shoulders, for example, cause a cramping of the organs in the chest - heart, lungs, liver - thereby reducing their vitality and making them more liable to disease. Spinal curvature results in the cramping of important nerves and blood vessels that regulate the activities of vital organs. This means that the nerve and blood supply to those organs is defective and the organs become weak and susceptible to disease.

Good posture, on the other hand, means that the organs have the greatest possible chance to remain in their normal position. And good posture means that nerves and blood vessels are able to keep the organs strong and healthy.

The idea that good posture contributes to good health is based on the mechanics of the human body and is as sound as any principle that operates anywhere in the field of mechanics. The idea is gaining ground rapidly and when it finally is accepted for its true worth by the whole populace, there will be a vast improvement in the health and vitality of men, women and children everywhere. There is more to correct posture than standing straight. Correct posture includes the way you sit in your favorite chair, the way you drive your automobile, or even the position in which you sleep. Your chiropractor is an expert on postural correction. He is well versed in the effects of posture on spinal distortions. He will be glad to aid you in correcting the posture habits of your entire family.

Correct posture gives you a vigorous bearing . . . makes you look years younger . . . makes you healthier. Constant practice and application will soon make correct posture a natural habit and result in a more alert mind and a more active, healthy body.

For more information on CORRECT POSTURE call Dr. R.J. Serafin DC at 846-4732 or write 60 Mission Dr., Pleasanton.

'Washington': Will It Rate?

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Ehrlichman, the ex-Nixon aide now in the slammer, once wrote a novel, "The Company." ABC made it the basis of a $7.5 million TV flick, "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

With ABC expecting a Roots-like rating, "Doors" opens Tuesday on Channels 7, 11, and 13, with a fast-paced pageant of D. C. power, illegalities, love, fear and loathing, even an embassy party.

Jason Robards, Cliff Robertson, Andy Griffith and Robert Vaughn star in this fictional version of the good old days — Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard M. Nixon, Vietnam, massive protests and buggings galore.

The series ends with a Watergate-type bugging, begins with an election scramble touched off by the surprise announcement of a Johnsonesque president (Griffith) that he's too ill to seek a second term.

Those doors open for TV tonight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Ehrlichman, the ex-Nixon aide now in the slammer, once wrote a novel, "The Company." ABC made it the basis of a $7.5 million TV flick, "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

With ABC expecting a Roots-like rating, "Doors" opens Tuesday on Channels 7, 11, and 13, with a fast-paced pageant of D.C. power, illegalities, love, fear and loathing, even an embassy party.

Jason Robards, Cliff Robertson, Andy Griffith and Robert Vaughn star in this fictional version of the good old days — Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard M. Nixon, Vietnam, massive protests and buggings galore.

The series ends with a Watergate-type bugging, begins with an election scramble touched off by the surprise announcement of a Johnsonesque president (Griffith) that he's too ill to seek a second term.

The bad news comes Tuesday as CIA director William Martin (Robertson) sits in his plush, carpeted office, partly watching what he thought would be a routine presidential speech on national television.

During this time, the CIA chief also is discussing with two aides various CIA business — including a secret $20 million, 3,500-man counter-insurgency program in Southeast Asia. Which is Hot Stuff.

The big news surprises him. He goes home, broods, tells his wife, Linda (Lois Nettleton), who also has seen the announcement on TV.

As we quickly learn, she's the president's ex-lover ... and still cares for the old rascal. This distresses Martin, likewise a somewhat indelicate statement by Griffith the next day in the Oval Office.

There, after discussing business, he urges the CIA boss to start a family soon, adding: "Linda's a passionate girl. Go home and make a baby." This is known as the old flame angle.

The business angle concerns the secret Primula Report that could ruin Martin, as it concerns his part in assassinations of foreign leaders during a previous adminstration. Which is Extremely Hot Stuff.

Griffith seeks the illegal aid of the CIA in getting his chosen successor in office — in return for stashing the report from hostiles.

But when a rival-party senator (Robards, whose aide-decampaign is Vaughn) starts leading in the presidential polls, Martin ... well, many machinations mount, and good luck in keeping track of them.

Then a marriage collapses, a love affair commences, an illegal $250,000 campaign contribution arrives and Robards, cast as a Nixon-like hater of the effete Eastern Establishment, is elected president.

The show is fairly good, with deft touches of reality, and the acting is excellent, particularly that of Robards and Robertson. Despite their work and a tolerable script, though, I have a feeling "Doors" is going to bomb in ratings during its six-night run.

My theory: Viewers by now are so turned off by anything Washington, except maybe rumors South Korea just laid off three congressmen, that they may not turn on "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

Women aren't street cops — Angie's model

RED BLUFF, Calif. (AP) — June Lang, one of the inspirations for the NBC television show "Police Woman," doesn't think female officers should be in the field in uniform.

Mrs. Lang, who began her 20-year career with the Los Angeles Police Department in 1951, now lives on a Northern California ranch and rarely sees the show, which isn't aired in her area.

"Police Woman" portrays actress Angie Dickinson as Pepper Anderson, a plainclothes detective who gets into many tense scrapes.

Mrs. Lang says the show inspires women to go into police work, which she describes as "a beautiful job" as long as women realize it's not all glamor and excitement.

Mrs. Lang, one of the first LAPD women to do plainclothes intelligence, burglary, organized crime and homicide work, says:

"To send a woman out on patrol in uniform, I just don't feel they can do a dangerous job unless they have a backup team. So why send them in the first place unless it is an ego trip for the women?"

When the "Police Woman" show began as a spinoff of the "Police Story" series four years ago, producer Doug Benton said Mrs. Lang served as a consultant because "she was a legend at LAPD, she was so good."

Now Mrs. Lang, whose daughter, Vicki, works in the LAPD child abuse unit, has no consulting role on the show and only sees it when she travels to an area where it is aired.

While she says the show interests women in becoming policewomen, she adds LAPD Chief Ed Davis told her some female applicants now want "a job like Angie Dickinson."

Social Security system

Congress eyes bottom of well

By EDMOND Le BRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Social Security pays benefits to 33.3 million persons and collects taxes from 108 million workers and their employers. It's also running out of money.

But Congress has no intention of letting benefits to the elderly, disabled, widows and dependents be cut off or reduced.

It will start in earnest on the business of finding the needed money Sept. 12, when the House Ways and Means Social Security subcommittee begins putting together new financing legislation.

Witnesses already have described the uneasiness of the retired about the future of the system. Active workers, who in many instances are paying more in Social Security taxes than in income tax — up to $965.25 this year and probably $1,070.85 next year — worry that the load may become back - breaking and still leave them with no assurance of security in old age.

Since 1975 Social Security has been paying out more than it receives from the payroll taxes levied to support it.

It has been drawing down its reserves to keep up the payments. Latest estimates are that, if nothing were done, the trust fund for payments to those who retired for disability would be exhausted by late 1978 or early 1979 and current receipts would be insufficient for payments.

The corresponding fund for those who retired for age, and for their dependents, is not projected to last beyond about 1983 unless replenished.

Everyone agrees Social Security's financial problem is real and serious and that Congress must act quickly during the waning months of its 1977 session. But the agreement stops there.

The lawmakers are faced with what is always one of their most painful decisions: Who will pay?

Any tax increase runs counter to the efforts of President Carter and the Democratic majority to stimulate the lagging economy, while any additional spending not covered by taxes enlarges the deficit, threatens Carter's goal of budget balance by 1981, and may retard the growth of business confidence needed to provide job-building private investment.

Carter sent Congress early this year a package of proposals designed to see Social Security through its immediate financial pinch and make a start toward solving longer range problems that could cause the system even greater difficulties after the year 2000.

But at least one of the major elements in Carter's package is in deep trouble in Congress and no consensus on alternatives is in sight.

Livermore art exhibit rescheduled

Valley architecture on Saturday schedule

The Saturday morning class schedule at Chabot College Valley Campus includes a number of new courses focusing on the learning environments found in the Livermore - Amador Valley.

These courses have never before been offered on Saturday.

Included in the Saturday program is a class in architecture in the community, which explores through lectures and field trips various examples of local architecture in terms of their social, aesthetic and historical aspects.

A class in field ecology will explore the floral and faunal species found in the Valley and a six weeks class in field geology (Sept. 24-Oct. 29) will travel to six sites of geological interest in the Bay Area.

Drama in performance is designed to develop appreciation of live drama performances. In addition to studying play scripts in the classroom, students will attend locally - produced theater performances.

Other Saturday classes include arts and crafts, basic electricity, genealogy, advanced first aid and emergency care, job hunting (Sept. 24-Oct. 15) and interpersonal relationships.

Saturday classes start Sept. 24.

Chabot College Valley Campus will offer the second year of conversational Spanish (50D) for the first time in the evening during the forthcoming autumn quarter.

The classes will meet on Tuesdays from 7 until 9:50 p.m. in Room 207-G at Granada High School, beginning Sept. 20. The instructor will be Katrin Spinetta, who will present the geography, customs, history and culture of Spain along with a comprehensive review of grammar.

Lectures, films and discussions are planned to improve vocabulary, enhance reading and listening comprehension, and to build conversational ability. Discussion topics also will include travel tips and information for the tourist.

Valley Campus will also introduce two experimental programs in the areas of reading composition and teaching of basic typing skills this fall.

Both programs will provide students with the opportunity to develop skills in areas in which they need to improve.

In addition, new courses will be offere in chemistry, computer mathematics, drama, geography, marketing, debate, real estate and physical education.

These programs will be complemented by co-curricular activities sponsored by the Office of Community Services and the Office of Instruction.

The new Hall of Justice in Hayward will be opened for the first time this morning.

Built at a cost of $12.4 million, the building located in the county complex at 24405 Amador St. will house superior and municipal courts.

Construction on the courts building began in June of 1974. The building contains 18 courtrooms with space available for building of four additional.

With 200,000 square feet over a total of three floors, the building has a security system featuring closed circuit television and separate corridors for movement of the general public and prisoners.

Eight superior courts will be scheduled initially.

Formal dedication ceremonies are planned for 1:30 p.m. Saturday with an open house to follow from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Hayward Mayor Ilene Weinreb, members of the Alameda County Bar Association, and federal and state representatives will participate in the ceremonies.
